Few parents will have overlooked the irony that back-to-school time (a.k.a. Mother's Liberation Day) coincides with a holiday called "Labor Day." In the old days, home schooling was often a part of a parent's job, especially for "type A" micro-managers like J. S. Bach, Leopold Mozart, and Abraham Mendelssohn, who got their kids up a 5 AM to get cracking on their Latin, mathematics, and music. Vaters Bach, Mozart and Schumann not only supervised the lessons but also wrote the textbooks on keyboard practice. Fortunately for the Bach kids, there were enough of them so that no one of them had to suffer Dad's intense enthusiasm for very long. Mozart was not so lucky.

Dear Congregation,

The Pastor Search Committee is pleased to share that twenty-seven applications have been received thus far. Significant research, including archived sermon review, intensive examination of applications and Curriculum Vitae, and group discussion has reduced this group to six remaining candidates. Based on two completed interviews, the Skype process has proven to be quite successful. Additional Skype sessions have been scheduled through the first week of October. Our current thinking has precluded additional advertising until the remaining applicants have been thoroughly vetted. Given the perceived quality of this group, it is hoped that finalists and an eventual recommended candidate will result. We continue to be optimistic about our process and the results experienced thus far. Thank you for your many prayers and supportive comments.

Dear Members and Friends,

It's Monday morning and Stevenson School has just held the initial meeting with staff and faculty prior to the beginning of the start of the school year. What a great event it was!

The meeting took place this year for the first time in the Erdman Chapel, the home of Church in the Forest, with the new President and Head of Stevenson School, Dr. Kevin Hicks, speaking to the faculty of the Pebble Beach campus as well as the Carmel campus.

In his opening words to the group, he said how wonderful it was to meet in such a place as the chapel and all that meant.

We as members of the congregation are fortunate to call this place home as well. Hope to see you Sunday.
