St. Patrick is said to have given a sermon from a hilltop that drove all the snakes from Ireland. Now, although no snakes were ever native to Ireland, some Irish people are more sensitive to the appearance of snakes than are others, and more so at certain times. And perhaps it was THOSE consumer-related snakes. Others think it may be a metaphor for the conversion of the pagans, but metaphorical thought is no longer mainstream in Ireland, and probably most will go with literal snakes, which sounds more cheerful. Though originally a Catholic holy day, St. Patrick's Day has evolved into more of a secular holiday. Here is progress, since a holiday, secular or otherwise, calls for more good cheer, and that IS mainstream.

Cheers!

Dear Members and Friends,

The other day I was going through my library just for the fun of it and came across a volume that I had bought when I was sixteen and living (as the flyleaf indicated) at 37 Burns Street, Dunfermline. I remember where and when I bought it, and I had proudly written my name inside on the flyleaf. The title was: The Secret of Radiant Life, by one of the most outstanding Methodist clergy in the U.K., the Reverend William E. Sangster. Here is something that I had marked back then for special attention:

Sangster asks: "Why are some Christians so grim?"

The best of these people have surrendered their will to Christ, but have never given him full control of their minds. They are, in a sense dedicated men and women, but Christ has never been allowed to reshape their thinking. And thought is life! The Bible says: "As a man thinks in his heart, so is he." These joyless, powerless Christians acknowledge Christ as Lord, and may do nothing to displease God, but their thinking continues on a low level, and so fear and resentment, pride and complaining, can still have a major part in their life. This is what the apostle Paul would say to them, who knew more than most followers of this Jesus what an utter transformation Christ's indwelling could make:

"Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind and have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus and be renewed in the Spirit of your mind." What a wonderful reminder that while we may have yielded our wills to God, we also, in order to know the power of God in our lives, have to surrender our minds as well. "Be transformed by the renewal of our minds."

Have a great week!

See you in church,

William B. Rolland

EASTER LILY ORDER FORM

It's that time of year again! Please use this form to order a Lily for our Easter decorations. The cost is $10 per plant and you may order more than one. Please fill out the order form below and return it with the appropriate amount.

Donor: _____

In Memory of/ In Celebration of/ or Thanksgiving for (please circle):

ANNOUNCEMENT: Due to the increase in our flower expense, we would like to encourage the option of two flower sponsors per week. The amount will remain at $65 per sponsor, but having two sponsors per week will enable CitF to defray the cost increase and allow for multiple weekly recognitions of special memories and celebrations.
